PLANS FOR THE TEMPLE

Masonic Committee to Meet to Select Site.

CROWD AT STATE FAIR

Twenty New School Libraries Approved-Governor Aycock U able to Deliver Address at State Fair on Account of a Bad Cold.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
RALEIGH, N. C., October 20.-Major Samuel H. Smith, of Winston-Salem, has already arrived, and other members of the Building Committee will arrive today and meet to-morrow to select the plans for the $100,000 temple the Grand Lodge of Masons will erect in this city. Several architects have already prepared plans, and it is only a question of choosing the most desirable.

This was Johnson county day in the Masonic Fair, and was quite successful. A special train brought a large number of Johnson county people. The daily re-ceipts at the fair are averaging over $1,000 a night. The proceeds benefit the Masonic Temple. FOLKS A PLENTY.

FOLKS A PLENTY.

There were never known to be so many people in Raleigh on a Monday of State Fair week as there were yesterday, and the crowds to-day are more like the usual Wednesday and Thursday crowds. All records are sure to be broken in attendance on the fair this year.

The State Superintendent of Public Instruction approves apportionments for twenty new rural school libraries. There are one each for Wilkes, Richmond, Davidson, Durham, Tyrell and Carnden; three each for Catawba and Madison, and four for Rockingham. Supplementary allowances were made for libraries already established in Robeson, Rockingham and Durham.

The directors of the Caraleigh Cotton Mill met to-day and re-elected old officers. Annual reports showed the affairs of the company to be in excellent condition.

THE GOVERNOR SICK.

Governor Ayeock found this morning that he had so severe a cold that he could not delver the opening address at the State Fair, and Major B. F. Dixon, State Auditor, spoke in his stead. There was the largest attendance ever seen at an opening of a State Fair. President J. A. Long, of the North Carolina Agricultural Society, delivered an address, in which Long, of the North Carolina Agricultural Scelety, delivered an address, in which he declared there had never been a State Fair for which every class of people seemed to co-operate so heartly. The buildings are chock full of exceptionally creditable exhibits, and the midway is the most extensive we have ever had.

RALEIGH'S WORTH.

The tax books for Wake county, just completed, show the property valuation in Raleigh to be $3,415,317. Property outside of Raleigh is $5,434,493, making a total of $16,039,693 in the county. The excess of property valuation in Raleigh is $1,290,394, but there are 2,829 more polis in the rural districts than there are in Raleigh.

CHEAN THE CITT HALL

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—An appropriation of $5,000 was voted by the Council last evening to pay the expense of uncovering rescality around the City Hall. This action was taken when Alderman Herrman told the Council that his committee investigating "graft" would be able to accomplish great things if it only had some money to work with. He said the committee wanted to look into grave abuses in administrative methods as well as specific charges of misconduct, consisted of engine, tender, a dead-head baggage car, which was being carried to Gordonsville; express and mail combined the cancer and three sleepers. Three minutes' time is required of trains in crossing this bridge by general orders, and the train was just rolling along without steam when the crash occurred. As the engine possed the center of the draw I reached up to the throttle to increase the speed of the train after passing off the draw, which is about elegaty feet long. consisted of engine, tender, a dead-head eighty feet long. eighty feet long.

"Just as I was in the act of catching hold of the throttle the accident occurred, and the Jerk of the parting train caused me to throw the throttle wide open. Immediately the electric lights on the bridge and on the engine went out and we were suddenly left in total darkness. In the noise of the escaping steam and the crashing and cracking of breaking and falling timbers I could not realize what had happened, though I felt the giving away of the bridge which is about fifteen feet above the water and the water beneath about fifteen feet deep. Some of the cross beams of the overhead frame work of the bridge fell and struck the headlight and dyname and the stack, knocking them over and crushing the bell, then falling on the rear of the cab roof, crushing that down considerably. It was too dark to see anything, and I called to my fireman, J. R. Woods, of Charlottesville, to see what had become of him. After calling several times he answered feebly by groaning, indicating that he was still on the rear or near by. The second car, the to use every effort to make the majoritica safe and sure.

Major J. N. Stubbs, of Gloucester, made a sure was self to dark to see anything, and I called to my fireman, J. R. Woods, of Charlotteville, to see what any who should attempt to desert the old party in this, the crucial period of its voice who intended to vote the Republican telester to hold up their hands. And adead silence, up went two hands, one party being a postmaster of the county the other the Republican nominee for supervisor from this district.

Mr. Stubbs rendered the first line of the docology at this exhibition, but dounted some of the others, asserting they were assamed to do so.

Baxon W. Holt Democratic nominee for the State Senate, made a happy little speech, and was well received.

A. J. Barnes, nominee for the House, made a short talk of much interest. Both parties will receive hearty support and a full vote.

Bev. John F. White, the prohibition was considerably. It was too dark to see what had become of him. After calling several times he answered feebly by groan-times he answere plete darkness. At this moment four men, who were stationed in the engine-room overhead, whence the draw is ope-rated, came down the sides of the bridge to the side of the cab. About this time I attempted to pull the engine away, but it would not move.

"As soon as the fireman grouned in re-sponse to my call, I found him in the cab, bleeding profus-by from a severe scalp wound and another on the face,

'Although weak and in pain and blinded assisted me in getting the fire out of the engine. In order to do this we had to stand on the cab seats above the firebox and reach downward and work the grate-bar back and forth, there being nothing har back and forth, there being nothing for us to stand on, the tender and bridge both having been swept from under us. Faint and weak and bleeding, the fireman labored faithfully, and between us we succeeded in getting the fires out. "Up to this time I thought certain that all the coaches had been plunged into the river, for the tender and deadhead taggage had gone, and it was too dark to see beyond the draw, and the silence of death provailed. Naturally I was much relieved to find that they had remained on the track on the other side of the break in the draw, and all were safe.

WAS A BIG ENGINE.

"The engine was what is known as a six-wheel connected one, with five foot eight inch wheels, such as is used for passenger trains. After easing it away from the break and off the draw on to the solid portion of the bridge, I went to the south end of the bridge, I went to the south end of the bridge, where a telegraph station is located, and reported to headquarters the trouble. Assistance soon came, and it was not until then we karned the rest of the train was safe, and only the deadhead car and the tender gone. This empty bagsage car was to be cut off at Gordonsville. It was this that saved the rest of the train. On the bridge above us were electric light and trolley wires, and in the collapse of the superstructure of the bridge I was afraid that wires had been exposed, especially when the electric lights went out. Fortunately, there was no such danger to add to the peril of the situation.

It was a close call for us, and a very remarkable thing that the entire train was not thrown into the river."

Mr. Sanders is an active member of the railroad Y. M. C. A., and is one of the most reliable and careful men in the service of the Chesapeake and Ohio. His friends are congratulating him on his thrilling escape from death or serious injury, as it was he was entirely uninjured, and his fireman only severely hurt.

Merchants' Light and Power Ordinance Concurred in-Constitutional Question Raised as to Eligibility of Mr. Ellett for Seat in Board

The Board of Aldermen at a called session last night adopted without amendthe ward lines of the city, and it now goes to the Mayor for his signature. 1 approved by His Honor, it will become effective on January 1, 1904. The plan is exactly as it came from the Ordinance Committee, and as printed some time ago in this paper.

The ordinance granting a charter to the Merchants' Co-operative Light and Power company was concurred in and a large amount of routine business was disposed of. The resignation of Chptain James R. Sheppard as a member of the Board from Lee Ward was accepted, and Mr. Minor nominated Mr. T. H. Ellett as his suc-was ineligible, for the reason that he is now a member of the Council, and the new Constitution does not permit the election of members to positions within the gift of the body, or of ex-members until twelve months shall have elapsed. The nomination was laid upon the table, and the matter referred to the City At-

and the matter referred to the City Attorney for his opinion.

The board was called to order at 8 o'clock, and a quorum of members answered to their names.

FRANCHISE APPROVED.

The resolution and ordinance granting a franchise to the Merchants' Co-operative Light and Power Company were concurred in, and a number of paving and curbing resolutions from the other branch were also concurred in. The resolution to appropriate $1.000 to repair the roadway from Chimborazo Park to Fulton caused a good deal of discussion, and it was finally concurred in—ayes, 17; noes, 2.

An ordinance was adopted appropriating $15,000 for coal and oil for the gas ing $15.000 for coal and oil for the gas department, owing to the expense of the additional output of gas during the year. Under suspension of the rules the resolution appropriating $500 lo repair the gas pipes at the City Hall was concurred in, and the proposition to raise the salary of the superintendent of the Almshouse caused quite a debate. It was advocated by Mr. Gunst and opposed by Mr. Allen, the latter desiring it to go over until the next budget. It was finally concurred in-ayes, 18; noes, 1.

The raise is from $1.200 to $1.500 per year, and is effective on January 1st, 1904. ing $15,000 for coal and oil

MATTER REFERRED.

Mr. Minor presented the name of Mr. T. H. Ellett as Mr. Sheppard's successor, and Mr. Seay raised the point of ineligibility on account of the constitutional inhibition against electing members of the Council to positions in the gift of the body until twelve months after the expiration of their terms. On motion of Mr. Gunst the nomination was laid upon the table, and the opinion of the City Attorney as to the constitutional status of the matter was asked for. A resolution to appropriate $4,000 for the purchase of a appropriate $4,000 for the purchase of a school lot was concurred in, and Mr. Satterfield offered by request a resolution to increase the salary of the harbor master to $400 per year.

Mr. Wood offered an ordinance, which was referred, fixing the salaries of the

He moved that the A. P. V. A. appoint a committee of four ladies and three gentlemen to consider this question. It was so decided.

Mrs. G. W. Bagby, chairman of the year have unearthed the foundations of perhaps the oldest English-american perhaps the oldest English that houses in this country. She thought that it was most important now to protect these foundations and also to make every effort to finish the breakwater. She also wished the members of the A. P. V. After Mrs. Bagby's report was read, Mr. Samuel H. Yonge made several suggestions concerning the future work at Jamestown.
